Speaker: Toloczko, Kerri – Kerri (Houston) Toloczko is a veteran public policy analyst and expert in coalition building and messaging on domestic and international public policy issues and has worked in the conservative think tank movement for over twenty-five years.

Currently focused on election integrity, Kerri is National Training and Networks Director at Conservative Partnership Institute’s Election Integrity Network, Senior Advisor for the Florida Fair Elections Coalition, and Director of Strategic Partnerships at the Virginia Institute for Public Policy. She is also a senior fellow at numerous public policy organizations.

A widely published opinion writer, her editorials are regularly published in numerous national publications, and she is a regular guest on talk radio and cable news nationwide.

Known for her dedication to presenting public policy in a way that will “pass the dinner table test,” Kerri brings a sharp wit and a practical spin to free market solutions to public policy problems and in developing stakeholder relationships.

Title: Election Integrity Infrastructure: Problems and Solutions in Reclaiming Elections through Citizen Engagement

Outline:

1. Manipulation and outright theft of American citizens’ votes has been on the left’s subterranean radar for years. After serious question arose after the 2020 elections, many conservatives started asking, “what just happened?” and “how do we fix it?”
2. The left has billionaires with bottomless pockets. We have a nationwide army of concerned and dedicated patriot activists. Conservatives must join to organize them and provide all resources necessary for their success – and we are!
3. Leftwing organizations, the liberal media and the Democrat establishment demonize election integrity activists – individually and personally – and assigned a false narrative of “racist” and “voter suppression” to common sense election protections. But the American public’s own opinions tell a different story.
4. Election integrity is under assault from Democrat political officials in federal and state offices, the Biden Administration, and leftwing advocacy groups and their billionaire donors. Robust statewide fair elections coalitions are the bulwark against the destabilizing of our elections.
